Overview

Adjusting the angle of solar panels can facilitate snow slide-off, as steeper angles prevent accumulation. Heating solutions can also be considered for particularly snowy regions, using electrically heated systems to melt snow.

Photovoltaic: how to protect solar panels from freezing

Panels installed at an inclination of at least 30-40 degrees allow the snow to slide down more easily, avoiding heavy loads on the surface.

What you should do in case of snow pressure damage

Snow pressure or sliding snow can cause modules to shift, frames to bend and cables to come loose, which can become a major problem in the long term.
